

Instructor, Application Development & Delivery (Term)

Applied Computer Education

Applicants are to clearly demonstrate how they satisfy the selection criteria in their written submissions and must identify the competition number when submitting their application.

An Expression of Interest is used to fill future vacancies by creating a list of eligible candidates that have already gone through a competitive process.

DUTIES

Reporting into the Chair of Application Development & Delivery, the Instructor(s) will teach both online and on-campus courses for Applied Computer Education programs. Courses cover topics such as software application development, web development, DevOps, user experience, and cloud computing. Duties will include teaching existing courses, collaborating to develop and update courses, and engaging students to create meaningful applied learning opportunities. Successful candidates will also contribute to the learning environment of the department by committing to ongoing professional development to stay current with industry practices, supporting the learning of peers, and participating in departmental and College projects and committees. Solid technical expertise paired with strong communication and intercultural skills are required to inspire students in a blended learning environment. Full-time and part-time opportunities are available. Please include your area of specialization on your application.
